weiter:kommen - Support fund for female students and scientists is designed to support women at university who, due to structural constraints or a lack of other funding, are unable to take important steps in their academic careers, such as attending a relevant conference or publishing a paper that involves significant costs.

Possible funded measures may include:

- an assistant to help with sudden childcare shortages,
- childcare for accompanying children during a workshop or conference,
- grants towards publication or open-access costs,
- support with participation costs for (short-term) training courses,
- funding for editing or translation to ensure the quality of academic work.

Please note that funding from this fund can only be applied for if funding from other existing schemes is not available, e.g. due to missed deadlines, exhausted funding or a rejected application.

Eligible applicants are female students and researchers in the early stages of their careers (PhD students, postdoctoral researchers and junior professors).
